

CHINA

THE # MAIL.

PUBLISHED EVERY EVENING. AND WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE "HONGKONG EVENING MAIL AND SHIPPING LIST."

VOL. XXV. No. 1892 號 一月七十九十六百八十一英

HONGKONG, THURSDAY, 1ST JULY, 1869

日二十一月五年已已治同

PRICE, $24 PER ANNUM.

AGENTS FOR THE CHINA MAIL.

LONDON.—F. ALGAR, 11, Clement's Lane, Lombard Street; GEORGE STREET, 30, Cornhill; GORDON & GOTCH, 121, Holborn Hill, E.C.; BATES HENDY & CO., 4 Old Jewry, E.C.

AUSTRALIA, TASMANIA, AND NEW ZEALAND.—GORDON & GOTCH, Melbourne and Sydney.

SAN FRANCISCO and American Ports generally:—WHITE & BAUER, San Francisco.

CHINA.—Shattock, Brown & Co., Amoy; Gurney & Co., Foochow; Thompson & Co., Shanghai; BIELFELD & KELLY, Manila; G. K. BUTH & Co.

Arrivals.

July 1, Shaftesbury, Russ. steamer, 524, Atkin, Yokohama, Kobe and Nagasaki, June 19, 22 and 24, General.—LANDSTEIN & Co.

July 1, Venus, American steamer, 637, Hamlin, Shanghai, June 27, General.—AU-GUSTINE HEARD & Co.

Departures.

July 1, Aden, for Yokohama, 1, Ottawa, for Shanghai, 1, Falle, for Whampoa, 1, Cutty Sark, for Chefoo, 1, Elizabeth Cushing, for Manila, 1, Samuel Russell, for Shanghai, 1, Marque de la Victoria, for Manila.

Passengers.

ARRIVED.—Per Venus, Captain, Crowell, Sister Maria, Mrs J. Danenberg, and 36 Chinese.

Shipping Reports.

The American steamer Venus, Capt. J. Hamlin, from Shanghai, reports fine weather and strong Southerly wind all the passage to Hongkong; passed the steamship China on 28th inst., at 2 p.m., off Straw-stack bound to N.E.

The Russian steamer Shaftesbury, Capt. Atkin, from Yokohama, reports fine weather and strong Southerly winds all the passage to Hongkong.

New Advertisements.

STEAM TO SINGAPORE, POINT DE GALLE AND BOMBAY.

THE P. & O. S. N. Co.'s S. S. "ORISNA" will have quick despatch for the above port.

W. MACAULAY, Superintendent.

Hongkong, July 1, 1869.

NOTICE.

A General MEETING of the Members of the HONGKONG ASSOCIATION to receive the Report of the Committee and for the transaction of any business necessary will be held at the Rooms of the CHAMBER of COMMERCE on THURSDAY, the 6th instant at 3 p.m.

By order of the Committee.

T. G. LINSTEAD, Honorary Secretary.

Hongkong, July 1, 1869.

July 8.

VICTORIA FOUNDRY.

Spring Gardens.

ESTABLISHED 1857.

M'DOUGALL & CO., ENGINEERS, Boiler Makers, Brass and Iron Founders, Ships' Smiths, and General WORKERS.

Boilers made and repaired: for prices of New Boilers, apply at the Works, Spring Gardens.

Hongkong, July 1, 1869.

Oct. 1.

NOTICE.

MR. LEONARD STAEL has been admitted a Partner in our Firm from this date.

HESSE & Co.

Hongkong, July 1, 1869.

Oct. 1.

PER "MAIL."

MISS GARRETT has received, BON-

NETS and HATS of the latest

Fashion, LACE, FICHUS, MANTLES, etc., &c.

Has a large assortment of Dawson's Ladies, Gentlemen's, and Children's BOOTS,

&c.

Gentlemen's and Boys' Straw HATS.

Albany.

Genl STARCK and STONE BLUE.

Hongkong, July 1, 1869.

Oct. 1.

HONGKONG FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED.

NOTICE TO SHAREHOLDERS.

In accordance with paragraph No. 110 of the Articles of Association of this Company, the half-yearly interest at the rate of 12% per annum on the paid up Capital is now due.

Watsons payable at the HONGKONG and SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION, Hongkong, can be obtained at the Offices of the Company, 39 Queen's Road.

JARDINE, MATHESON & CO., General Managers.

Hongkong, June 30, 1869.

July 7.

NOTICE.—On and after July 1st, no less quantity of ICE than six pounds will be delivered.

H. O'HARA, Agent Tudor Co.

ICE House, Hongkong, June 30, 1869.

Oct. 1.

New Advertisements.

THE Undersigned will not be Responsible for any Debts contracted by Crew of ship John Bank.

W. REYNOLDS, Master.

Hongkong, June 28, 1869.

July 5.

Mrs H. S. PEEL.

PRIVATE BOARDING HOUSE, Stanley Street, No. 6.

(Barber, Misses' Servants & Co.)

Hongkong, June 28, 1869.

July 5.

FOR SALE.

GENUINE Havana CIGARS, in boxes of 50 each.

Superior CHEROOTS, in boxes of 200.

CAVITE CIGARS and CHEROOTS, Manila CIGARS, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, per "French Mail."

Meerschaum PIPES and CIGAR-HOLDERS.

BIELFELD & ZACHARIE.

Hongkong, June 25, 1869.

July 5.

TO LET.

A very nicely FURNISHED

A HOUSE in Elgin Street.

Apply to

LANE, CRAWFORD & Co.

Hongkong, June 22, 1869.

July 5.

NOTICE.

CONSULAT DE FRANCE A HONGKONG.

COLONIE DE SAIGON.

DIRECTION DE L'INTERIEUR.

AVIS.

Le mercredi, 1er septembre 1869, il trois heures du soir, il sera procédé dans les bureaux de la Direction de l'Intérieur, à l'adjudication, sur soumission cachetée, de meerschaum PIPES and CIGAR-HOLDERS.

Bielfied & Zacharie, 1, Elgin Street.

Hongkong, 24 June, 1869.

Le Consul de France.

1 Jul.

H. DU CHESNE.

NOTICE.

STAG HOTEL.

THIS Establishment having been entirely

Refurnished and much improved will be REOPENED for Business this day.

J. BAILEY WATSON, in again taking charge of the above, begs to return his thanks to his numerous friends and the public generally for the liberal support he has received for the last ten years, and trusts that, by strict attention to cleanliness and the general comfort of his patrons, to merit a continued confidence of their support.

Tiffin, ..... at 1 o'clock P.M.

Dinner, ..... at 7 "

N.B.—Two of HARRIS' first class IRON BILLIARD TABLES.

J. B. WATSON.

Hongkong, June 12, 1869.

NOTICE.

STAG HOTEL.

Ice Cream Drinks—Ice Cream Drinks.

THE Undersigned has just landed, and is now in complete working order, one of Dows & Van Winkle's ICE CREAM SODA WATER APPARATUS.

He can now supply the Public at a moment's notice with the following Nectars: Strawberry, Raspberry, Pine Apple, Orange, Lemon, Ginger, Vanilla and Sarsaparilla.

Price at the Bar, 15 cents per Glass.

J. B. WATSON.

Hongkong, June 22, 1869.

NOTICE.

T. E. HAWKINS'S

HORSE REPOSITORY,

AND HORSE-SHOING FORGE,

DUDDELL STREET,

HONGKONG.

Horses and Ponies carefully broken to Saddles and Harness.

Horses, Ponies, Harness, and Carriages, always on hand for sale.

GENERAL WEEKLY SALE.

LANE, CRAWFORD & Co. will sell

by Public Auction, on FRIDAY,

the 2nd July, 1869, on their Praya Preries.

50 piculs Coir Rope, assorted sizes, Ex

Wulang.

A few coils Europe Rope.

Etc., Etc., Etc.

And,

in their Sale Rooms, Queen's Road, 180 cases Preserved Provisions in tins, ex Chusan, comprising Salmon, Hindon, Haddock, Herring, Mackerel, Vegetable, Giblet, Sheep's Head, Hotchpotch, Kidney and Hare Soup; assorted Meats; Boiled, Roast and Curried Fowls; Roast Ducks and Green Peas, Corned Ox Tongues, Green Peas, Beetroot and Mashed Parsnips, Sweet Milk.

10 cases tins assorted Biscuits.

Ivory-handled Table Cutlery.

Toilet Box, assorted Perfumes, Brandy, Clavet, Platform Scales, Muskets and Rifles, Black and Green Paint, White Zinc,

5 barrels Resin, 500 Swords, 5 cases

American Tobacco.

An Invoice of Indian Condiments, comprising: Pindaree, Bengal, Lucknow,

Cashmere and Col. Skinner's Chutneys, Curry Paste, etc.

Hollands, Hosiery, White Shirts, etc.

And,

(On account of the concerned.)

2 cases Transparence Soap.

Etc., Etc., Etc.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Our columns are open to all who wish to address the public on legitimate subjects, but we do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents.

All communications addressed to this paper must be accompanied by the name of the sender, not necessarily for publication, but for a guarantee of good faith.

THE CHINA MAIL.

HONGKONG, THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1869.

COMING EVENTS.

The virtual recall of Sir Harry Kappel for experience leads us to believe that the "option" so kindly given him by the Admiralty is but a polite hint, and will naturally result in a change of the Naval policy hitherto pursued in these waters. If activity and vigour in action, a firm belief in the protective privileges of being under the British flag, and a combination of judgment and humanity in putting a stop with the least expenditure of blood and treasure to a series of outrages upon British subjects, are to be in future a just cause for admiring and recalling his successor will naturally, unless he be a man of more uncommon metal, pursue a precisely opposite course of conduct. Junior officers will naturally be compelled to follow his example, and the days of active protection under the British flag will be over. The residents at the open ports, unable to count upon any effective aid in case of outrage, will for a time have to put up with any ill-treatment or violation of Treaty rights to which they may be subjected; and for some months to come, it is probable that the official despatches to the home departments will suggest "desirable" aspects of peace, which will put the nation into the belief that the former disturbances in China were, as now asserted, caused by the injurious rashness of Vice Consuls and Lieutenants, and that if we refrain from action nothing will occur to disturb their fancied security.

The Chinese however possess a talent which always strongly developed in an Asiatic nation, particularly so in China. This talent which places them in the first rank of merchants, and for centuries enabled them to maintain a centaurian ascendancy over the "outside barbarian," may be defined as that of making every acquisition, down to its minutest detail, the basis of a fresh addition. Commercially their cash becomes cents and their cents become taels in a manner which excites the admiration of the less closely calculating Western. The single element of commercial failure in China is the passion for gambling, whether it be play pure and simple or questionable speculation in the market. Similarly, in political matters, the smallest concession, nay, the least hesitation to exact to the uttermost any right we possess, is received with a satisfaction which is proportioned to the use it may be put to as a basis for additional exactions. The sentiment of honor which so largely enters into even the worst forms of European diplomacy, does not exist amongst the Chinese as a body of politicians, and the most wary who deal with them are continually subjected to the mortification of finding themselves over-reached by neglecting to take those precautions which would be as insulting as unnecessary were a western power in question. But here again the passion for a "big venture" constantly displays itself. It may be a local outrage, a mere infringement of civil rights, or what not. Yet the first thought which occurs to the Chinese statesman is to "chance" the result of refusing to interfere. "It may happen that we will put up with it, for we are notoriously averse to a fresh war; if, on the other hand, we insist they can only say we must do what we want done ourselves, etc., etc."—with a result sufficiently well known to our readers. It is impossible that the most thorough-going pensioner can, if he has the faintest acquaintance with China, fail to see the fresh impetus which is given to his policy—now steadily pursued for ten years—by the public, and would be humiliating reprimands which have been publicly inflicted upon British officials concerned in the recent events. Yet as the trading gambler generally succeeds in losing his all, does the political gambler find that his would be gain is all lost in the end. While our parliament and people are congratulating themselves upon the good fortune and wise policy (1) which has restored peace between China and ourselves a storm is brewing which will before long burst upon their heads with a fury which will surprise even British plenip. Just as one hears the premonitory mutterings of the storm cloud ere it descends in torrents to the fierce accompaniment of crashing thunder and blinding lightning, so on the spot see and hear the warnings from which we are powerless to profit. They have even yet to go. But a few days hence one of Her Majesty's Consuls was forced to fly with his picnic party from an infuriated mob of 300 or 400 natives who were firmly convinced that the Europeans were cooking and devouring little children. The authorities have promised to inquire into the affair and, if possible, punish the ringleaders. But with the certain knowledge that the Consul may use no threats and can but "refer the matter to Peking," we venture to believe that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

Our columns are open to all who wish to address the public on legitimate subjects, but we do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents.

All communications addressed to this paper must be accompanied by the name of the sender, not necessarily for publication, but for a guarantee of good faith.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty for their recent despatches.

that nothing will be done. To be obliged to faintly endure unmerited insult is bad enough, but when we know that the result will be fresh insult it becomes unbearable. But we may not and the home authorities will not see in petty disturbances of this nature the forecast of a coming storm. We are not, however, without consolation; for, to pursue the analogy, the atmosphere will be materially cleared when it has burst. In this belief we feel almost grateful to Earl Clarendon and the Admiralty

